Activity: Share pictures of a pictorial story book written by the child | Creativity & imagination | 6 years

Skill development milestone

The child is said to be in the schematic stage. This stage is typical of children between 5 to 8.

Drawings of people become more proportional and more detailed. Colors become more realistic and stereotypical (grass is green, the sky is blue). Skyline and ground lines start to show. Children have a schema about a way of drawing. For example, a house will be drawn the same way in many drawings. Children will often create stories to go along with their drawings.

At this stage, children will be developing skills important for art, including trial and error, patterns, shapes and interpretation.

Child holds onto positive beliefs involving the unexplainable (magic or fantasy). This would reflect in their choice of books, games and play. They also arrive at some understanding about death and dying; expresses fear that loved ones may die. Child learns all letter names and letter sounds for consonants. Learns to decode by identifying sounds for printed letters and synthesizing sounds across letters to form words.

Child is enthusiastic and inquisitive about surroundings and everyday events. The child can carry on adult-like conversations; asks many questions. Child loves telling jokes and riddles.

Activity description

The child needs to create a story book with at least 4 pages of story. Each story page is required to have a hand-drawn image by the child related to the story & at least 2 sentences about the story on the page. The 4 pages are in addition to the cover pages of the story book. The story must have a conclusion.

Self-learning manual

Common mistake and things to keep in mind in this activity are:

1. The child is doubtful of own creativity & drawing skills & hence, not willing to try the activity
2. Child has ideas but is not able to translate into story book due to limited drawing skills or vocabulary/language skills
3. Child is not able to bring the story to an end / conclusion and gets into an infinite story loop or ends story abruptly
4. Child is not in the right mindset while learning

Key coaching tip to excel in this exercise is that let the child do this activity for self & not for anyone else. Encourage the child to think that the child is expressing his/her thoughts. Important to have an interesting idea and expression can always be bettered – e.g. someone else can make the drawing for the story if the story is good.

If the child is feeling shy, nervous, low on confidence, you may be a good sport & participate in the same activity to encourage the child to let go of any fears.

Guide the child on how can a story be ended better – emphasize on happy conclusion. If the child's story telling style is to build suspense/interest, guide the child to not desert the same unanswered but create delight for listener by presenting something interesting/surprising after the build up.

Indulge in this fun activity using any story book the child has or referring to pictures from various books / apps.

When you feel the child is enjoying the activity regularly, and can create story book on the go, let the child express himself/herself.

Key benefits of this exercise are:

- It helps them develop creativity in different aspects of life
- It helps them come up with new ideas or thoughts
- It can help them think critically
- It can help them develop their language skills
- It broadens their understanding towards things fictional and nonfictional
- It improves their grammar skills
- It helps them practice self-discipline
