Activity: Record video of child calling out gift he/she would like to give a friend | Socio-Emotional | 6 years

Skill development milestone

The child develops relationships with and love people outside the family as their emotional needs are met by family alone but peers as well. They need information sources outside of family, and other adults become important in their lives. They recognize other's perspectives. They spend more time with the peer group and turn to peers for information. They have sustained peer group interactions.

The child develops less physically demonstrative relationships and express love through sharing and talking. They may be embarrassed by physical affection. They need love and support but feel less willing to ask for it. They understand more complex emotions, such as confusion and excitement.

The child becomes more modest and wants privacy. He/she wants more emotional freedom and space from parents. They become better at controlling and concealing feelings. They enjoy playing co-operative games but have difficulties coping with losing. They can cope in busy/noisy environments.

The child begins to form a broader self-concept and recognize their own strengths and weaknesses, especially regarding social, academic, and athletic skills. Extremes of emotions, emotional numbing is possible.

Self-learning manual

Common mistake and things to keep in mind in this activity are:

1. Child is shy
2. Child is thinking of gifts the child likes rather than thinking about likes/dislikes if his/her friend
3. Child is yet to develop a giving/sharing mindset

Key coaching tip to excel in this exercise is that have fun conversations with the child. You may start up with asking the kid what the child would like to receive as a gift on his/her birthday. Or alternately, propose any gift item as the gift you are planning to get for the kid on his/her next birthday. Let the child share his/her views on what he/she likes or would want to receive as gift.

Then, you can shift from child himself/herself to any other family member/relatives or friends. Ask the child to answer what he/she thinks that person would like to receive as a gift & why.

Ask the child if he/she would like to gift that gift to his/her friend on their next birthday. And then encourage the child to make a promise as to what he/she will do over next 2 to 3 months as an investment to be able to buy/create that gift for his/her friend.

Key benefits of this exercise are:

1. Empathy development
2. Stronger inter-personal relations
3. Perspectives formation
4. Better problem solving skills
